

Certification of Records Review

The Director of Central Intelligence authorized the National Reconnaissance Office (NRO) and the Central Intelligence Agency to conduct a joint review of records pertaining to the CORONA, ARGON, and LANYARD photographic satellite reconnaissance systems in accordance with Executive Order 12958 to determine their eligibility for declassification and release to the public. The records in this box having a blue barcode label in the upper right corner of the first page have been reviewed by the NRO as part of that joint NRO-CIA review.

Any record having an NRO-assigned blue barcode label should be returned to the NRO for its review prior to any subsequent declassification and release to the public.

FOR THE RECORD: CORONA HISTORY

This material was accumulated by [] who worked on the CORONA project. There should be other copies of this material elsewhere in the Agency files, but [] of the DCI History Staff reported he was unable to find another set when he was working a history project in late 1984.

[] retired in August 1984. We are therefore retiring this "package" to Archives--from the Office of SIGINT Operations where [] had been Director--though the files are actually pre-OSO.
